Project Management Handbook

Let's start with a terrifying fact for employers: 40% of employees who receive poor (or no) on-the-job training leave within the first year of employment. And when employees leave, it costs you. You need to have an on-the-job training program in your business. On-the-job training is an investment of time and money, but it's also an investment into your most important asset: your employees.

5 Steps To Build An Effective On-The-Job Training Program ...

This document provides information to DOE staff and contractors that can be used by training staffs (e.g., instructors, designers, developers and managers) and others for the development of a facility's On-the-Job Training (OJT) programs and to assist the instructors who conduct OJT and performance tests in the areas of facility operations, maintenance, and technical support.
